

We, the Class of 2014, hereby pledge to uphold these commitments:

Together, we face the changing tide of medicine;
Wave upon wave of challenges, cresting at our feet,
Growing ever nearer, pulling us within them.
We face this swelling surf gladly,
With conviction and with valor.

To our patients we vow to challenge ignorance, neglect, and disease;
And in doing so, we will embrace the perpetuity of our education,
For the benefit of humankind, not to cease in this endeavor.
We accept this challenge gladly,
With conviction and with valor.

In each of our unique paths, along the trails we blaze in service,
We acknowledge from where we have come, and what we have endured to arrive here.
We hereby extend our humble gratitude, wholeheartedly and unendingly,
Toward those who have helped us, to those who have shown us the way,
For making us the anchor onto which all may hold,
And to those who will someday seek to pass unto us their torch.
We will take up this torch gladly,
With conviction and with valor.

We are the rising sun out on the horizon, beaming forth;
We bring vitality and innovation, courage and compassion.
And while recognizing our own limitations,
We will continuously strive for excellence and improvement.
We accept this responsibility gladly,
With conviction and with valor.

We hereby pledge to uphold this oath to our patients and our communities,
To our colleagues, our families, and ourselves.
So long as we draw breath into our lungs,
So long as there is warmth inside our hearts,
And so long as the spark of life holds fast within our minds.

We are of humanity; we are for humanity.
We are the class of 2014.

Handwritten signatures of the Class of 2014 members, arranged in six columns.