Edward J. Bedrick, PhD

“Double, Double, Toil and Trouble: Paradoxes, Biases and Fallacies That Can Turn Your Data Analysis to Rubble”

Tuesday, May 7, 2019
11:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m.
COM-T Room 6120

Edward J. Bedrick, PhD, is a professor in the Department of Epidemiology and Biostatistics at the Mel and Enid Zuckerman College of Public Health and Associate Director of the Statistics Laboratory. Dr. Bedrick most recently worked at the University of Colorado Anschutz Medical Campus as Professor of Biostatistics and Director of the Biostatistics and Bioinformatics Shared Resource in the UC Cancer Center. His research interests include Bayesian methods, the analysis of observational data and generalized linear and mixed models. Dr. Bedrick has collaborated in a variety of fields including anthropology, ecology, nursing, nephrology, ob/gyn, pediatrics, psychiatry, and veterinary epidemiology. Dr. Bedrick received his PhD in statistics from the University of Minnesota. He is a Fellow of the American Statistical Association.

This University of Arizona event is sponsored by the Division of Infectious Diseases, Department of Medicine, UA College of Medicine - Tucson. It is open to the public, particularly community physicians and other interested health-care professionals.